

News

New RIF Editor product launched

Asaro Systems are delighted to launch the new RIF editor product suite. With the RIF standard really starting to mature as a genuine gateway for the movement of product requirements it seemed sensible to provide a product that could take advantage of this.

Designed to be simple, intuitive and highly cost effective it is a perfect product for companies of all sizes to contribute into the detailed product delivery process. Being able to read several different versions of the RIF standard as well as create your own views and schemas will make this a valuable asset to your projects.

“The RIF standard has been at the core of our product delivery solutions for the past 3 years and as the standard has matured so has the needs of those wanting to use it. The RIF editor is a simple, cost effective and highly intuitive focused product that enables all sizes of organizations to contribute to a successful project”

Steve Coombs, Asaro Systems.